Moral of An Upset

Edward J. Flynn, boss of the Democratic organization in New York's Bronx where Henry Wallace's candidate for congress in the 24th New York district has won a landslide election, went to the heart of the matter in a post-election statement:

"This election brings home forcefully that those who are opposed to Communism do not exercise their franchise... regimented Communists vote while those who oppose Communism do not take the trouble to do so. I hope that this election will serve as a warning."

Flynn's conclusion was based on the fact that the Wallace candidate's backers polled 55.9 percent of the vote, against 27 percent for their candidate in the 1946 congressional election. The Republican candidate drew only 3.6 percent, against 19 percent in 1946, and the Democratic candidate drew 31 percent, against 44 percent in 1946. The fourth candidate drew the same percentage—4.5.

The result was a tribute to the Wallace crowd's ability to get its people to the polls. This ability used to be the secret of the old-line parties' success in their strongholds, one of which was the Bronx. But the secret has been taken over bodily by a new kind of organization. In New York City it bears one name, elsewhere it bears other names. It has various purposes in politics—not all of them as sinister as Boss Flynn says they are in his ballwick. But one thing they hold in common—determination to get their voters to the polls on election day. No one can criticize them for doing a good job in the primary obligation of citizenship.

Good Money After Bad

Ambassador Stuart's appeal to the Chinese is plain talk from an old China hand. The ambassador has made an unprecedented request for the elimination of corrupt and incompetent elements in the Chiang Kai-Shek government.

This appeal followed President Truman's request for another $570,000,000 for Chinese nonmilitary aid. Apparently the administration has resolved to continue making token grants to China—not enough to influence that unhappy country's destiny but enough to keep its hosts of black marketeers thriving. Senator Bridges, New Hampshire Republican, has entered the fray by saying we should grant large-scale military aid to Chiang Kai-Shek and salvage the dollars we already have sunk into his government.

Both the President and Senator Bridges base their requests on the assumption that China is putting its American aid to work in the national interest. There is overwhelming evidence this isn't so. The country is bogged down in bureaucratic indolence, official corruption and national inertia. If the Chinese Nationalist government were to heed Ambassador Stuart's plea to "straighten up and fly right," such aid might be worth while. As it is, it's throwing good money after bad.

British Diagnosis

The six-to-one vote of British Medical association doctors against the Attlee government's program for free medical service poses a neat question for British politicians:

Can a professional group be forced to do something against its collective will?

British doctors have been carried by their own circumstances and decisions part of the way toward "socialized medicine"—far enough to be used as an example by agitators for the same thing in the United States. The Medical association's referendum, no doubt, will strengthen the United States rebuttal that the British doctors are not happy about their situation.

In Britain it will add substance to what seems to be growing skepticism about the real support behind the Labor party's program. There is evidence that the British, as they move out of theoretical socialism into the realm of practice, are being unsold more rapidly than they are being sold. Apparently, this is what has happened to an overwhelming majority of the members of the British Medical association. When the time came for socialists to attain the ultimate objective of almost complete socialization of medical care, the doctors balked.

Peacetime Censorship

The House Executive Expenditures Committee is resuming its inquiry into a "classified information system" for government offices that could seriously hamper freedom of the press at the discretion of various executives.

During the war only three departments—State, War and Navy—were allowed to classify their information as restricted, confidential, secret and top secret. This was understandable. But the present security proposals would give 50 departments the same right.

There is an obvious difference between information that would endanger the nation and information that would expose incompetence or embarrass some official. Protests by the press already have modified some of the original security demands. Further investigation and modification is still necessary.

The Fortunate Island

Almost unnoticed, Ceylon is the latest segment of the British empire to assume dominion status in the British commonwealth. It embarks on its new course without the tumult and strife of Pakistan and India, and with few of the war-induced shortages afflicting Burma. Ceylon is a peaceful spot in the turbulent Orient. Being principally Buddhist, its people have no religious conflicts. The island's trade balance is favorable. Its production of sapphires, pearls, tea, rubber, copra and spices has won it the title of "The Jewel in India's Crown."

Ceylon is a going concern which hard-pressed Britain is fortunate to enumerate among its dominions.

Men resent women when they have the face to change their mind but not when they have a mind to change their face.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Saturday, February 21

SATURDAY'S horoscope holds particular encouragement for all sorts of sociability, visiting, trips and romantic adventures in which it is possible for dreams and ideals to be made into reality as long as the feet are kept on the ground while head and heart reach for the skies. Serious thought and constructive plans could be crystallized into stability and security on enduring foundations.

Those whose birthday it is have a year of splendid auguries for success, prosperity and happiness, with fulfillment of high ambitions and realization of dreams and ideals, provided that sound and workable plans and policies be established on firm bases, by industry, lasting agreements, sound logic. This, although there are strong tendencies toward the romantic, social and idealistic. The latter may culminate in change, trips, strange contacts or revised plans of surprising scope and enterprise, even against opposition, obstacle or delays.

A child born on this day is endowed with much talent and aspiration, of a realistic as well as most advanced outlook. Innovation and ingenuity may be materialized by industry and determination.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Columbia U. is remodeling its "president's house" for General Eisenhower... I hear Ike remarked that other presidents were having balconies put in.

Naturally, Columbia didn't want to lose Ike to electoral college which plays its big game this year.

But Columbia has nothing to worry about... the Republicans couldn't get Ike to run any more than the Germans could.

In fact Ike is so non-running that he is my entry for "the walking mah."

President Truman has been invited to address the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick and might accept... the feeling is that he can use all the friendly sons he can meet this year.

Mr. F. hasn't said he will run. About all he says is "I will support the Democratic candidate whoever I might be."

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

Treating Cancer of The Lip

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

It is not often that a mild disorder develops into a serious one, but cancer of the lip is a decided exception to this general rule. It often begins as nothing more dangerous than a mere thickening of the skin, or it may develop from such apparently harmless conditions as a tiny sore or a recurrent cracking of the skin.

If any of the conditions develop which might lead to cancer of the lip, immediate treatment by a physician is advisable.

As a rule, some type of simple operative treatment is all that is required to get rid of these conditions. Naturally, when the thickened skin or ulcer is removed, all of the affected tissues should be cut out.

On Lower Lip

The usual location of a carcinoma of the lip is on the lower lip. It appears that this type of tumor growth occurs almost entirely in men. It is thought that the continued exposure to bad weather or irritation from tobacco may help to bring on this type of cancer.

The tumor itself is raised above the skin and may be ulcerated. Some are inflamed. If a cancer has developed, operative treatment is imperative. A small cancer of the upper lip can be removed and the edges of the wound brought together. In some cases, however, the growth may have extended to such an extent that large amounts of tissue must be removed, and various types of plastic operations done to repair the defect in the lip.

quamous cell epitheliomas, it is suggested that the lymph glands be taken out in all cases since this type of tumor is likely to metastasize, that is, the tumor cells are carried from the original growth to other parts of the body where they lodge and grow.

Any person with a sore on the lip, which does not heal within three weeks, should see a doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A. C. G.: What causes palpitation of the heart?

Answer: A common cause of this condition is chronic constipation. Nervousness is a very frequent cause. Actual disease of the heart may also be responsible.

An individual with this condition should have a careful examination by a physician.

Letters to Dr. Bundesen should be addressed in care of 235 E. 45th St., New York City.

Census Of Manufacturers To Show Growth In Ohio

For the first time in eight years, the Bureau of the Census in 1948 is conducting in Ohio and throughout the nation a full scale census of manufacturers.

This census, begun in 1910, has been conducted at varying intervals. Through 1939 it was conducted at 10-year intervals, from 1910 to 1919 at five-year intervals, and every two years from 1919 through 1939. The censuses for 1941, 1943 and 1945 were not conducted because of the war.

The current census will cover industrial activities during 1947 of an estimated 250,000 establishments. It will measure the vast changes in the country's manufacturing industries since 1939, when 184,220 establishments were enumerated.

It will include the many new plants and new products developed in industry during and following the war years as well as measuring the changes in the older industries. The new data will provide up-to-date benchmarks by which business can measure its progress and on which it can intelligently base plans for the future.

Ohio Statistics
Ohio, in 1939, had 10,070 manufacturing establishments and statistics for 1947 are expected to reveal a substantial increase in their number. The state's industrial employment totaled 735,277 persons whose wages and salaries amounted to $1,125,369,470. Value added by manufacture was $2,123,474,003.

In terms of average number of wage earners employed during the year, Ohio's leading industry group embraced 946 establishments engaged in the manufacture of iron and steel and their products, except machinery, with 154,980 wage earners. Wages paid totaled $228,831,000 and the value added by manufacture was $475,550,000. Next in importance was the industry group composed of 902 establishments engaged in the manufacture of machinery, except electrical. These establishments employed 77,139 wage earners with wages paid amounting to $119,273,000 and a value added by manufacture of $318,317,000.

At the first census of manufacturers in 1910, Ohio had 636 manufacturing establishments. The value of products was $2,055,730 and included production in family home and neighborhood hand industries. In terms of dollar value of output, Ohio's leading industry in 1910 embraced 343 distilleries which produced 1,212,266 gallons of spirits worth $580,180. Second was the production of flaxen goods in families etc., with 1,093,031 yards valued at $425,149. Third in rank was the manufacture of blended and unnamed cloths and stuffs, 701,156 yards valued at $418,244. Six gunpowder mills reported an output of 12,850 pounds of gunpowder worth $7,350; four flax seed oil mills produced 3,752 gallons of linseed oil valued at $3,941; and a production of 24,000 bushels of salt was valued at $24,000.

Because of the great demand for revised statistics, Director J. C. Capt of the Census bureau is urging all manufacturers to report promptly and accurately as required by law. "While the law imposes penalties for failure to report accurate information," Director Capt. said, "the known need for the new data is so great that we anticipate the most prompt and fullest cooperation of manufacturers. The individual data furnished to the Bureau of the Census cannot be used for taxation, regulation or investigation."

While, as stated, the census of manufacturers is being conducted by mail through inquiries sent from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the Census Bureau, such follow-up work as may be necessary in Ohio will be conducted from Census field offices including one at Youngstown, John J. Gillespie, supervisor.

DAGWOOD-EDITED COOKBOOK PRINTED

That the name Dagwood now is as synonymous with sandwiches as Detroit with autos, is due, of course, to Chic Young, the delineator of the daily life of Mr. and Mrs. Dagwood Bumstead in the comic-strip, "Blondie," published in The Salem News.

Dagwood's consuming interest in food, and particularly his sandwich concoctions, ranging from simple little numbers like peanut butter and chili sauce on whole wheat, to complex assemblies involving cold ham or beef, crisp bacon, cheese, sardines, sliced tomatoes, baked beans, sliced onion, pickle, ketchup, mustard, lettuce and buttered bread, have struck a responsive chord in thousands of American homes. Mr. Young is the recipient of a stream of letters giving food criticism and recipes. He is perhaps the best informed man on sandwich, soup and salad likes and dislikes in the land.

From the experience thus thrust upon him and his own likes and experiments, he has edited a book, called "Blondie's Soups, Salads and Sandwiches Cook Book." Published by David McKay Co., Philadelphia, it has the subtitle, "277 Ways to Prepare Attractive Meals Quickly." It is illustrated with a number of Blondie and Dagwood drawings.

Old Grad At 80 Still Attends Cincy Lectures

CINCINNATI — Although graduated nearly 60 years ago from the University of Cincinnati, Thomas J. Creaghead, Covington, Ky., still attends university lectures.

Campus authorities reported that Creaghead, 80, has renewed his membership in the university's 27th annual business and professional men's group, weekly current affairs forum.

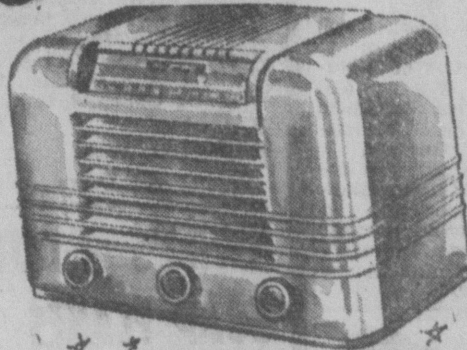

Creaghead, who received his degree from the university in 1889, is the retired head of the Creaghead Engineering Co., Cincinnati.

CLEVELAND LADY LOSES 35 POUNDS WITH RENNEL

"I have lost 35 pounds with Rennel," writes Mrs. Hazel M. Coleman, 4209 Euclid Ave., Cleveland. "My husband has lost 20 pounds and we are still taking it. We no longer have trouble with what we eat. My doctor approves of my taking Rennel and we have recommended it to many of our friends. Rennel makes you feel like a new person."

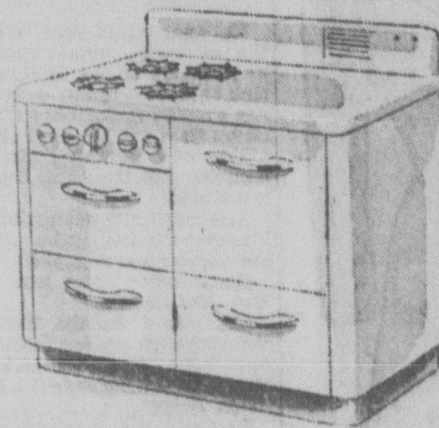

Hundreds of others have gotten amazing relief from the social and physical discomforts of excess weight. Get a bottle of Rennel from your druggist, pour the contents into a pint bottle and add enough unsweetened grapefruit juice to fill the bottle and then take two tablespoonsful a day. That's all there is to it. If the very simple way to lose bulky unsightly fat, if reducible pounds don't seem to disappear almost like magic, just return the empty bottle to the manufacturer and get your money back. You need never know a hungry moment while taking Rennel—no starvation diet—no printed diet list to buy—no vitamins to fortify you against weakness while going hungry, for you WON'T be hungry. Try this inexpensive method today. Available at all druggists. Don't be "switched" to another product, mist upon genuine Rennel.

Here's How To Test
Spuds or Cooking

CHARDON—If you want to know how to tell the difference between a good cooking potato and a bad one—read on.

Harry Reiley of the Michigan Potato growers exchanged demonstrated just how to differentiate between the spuds at a meeting of Geauga and Lake county housewives in Chardon.

Reiley placed a quarter pound of salt in a quart of water and then dropped in a potato. If the potato floats, it has no cooking qualities; if it sinks or is suspended, it has excellent cooking qualities, Reiley held.

He explained that the dry potato floats because of less moisture. Water in a potato determines cooking qualities, he added.

The Nation Today

BY JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON — Across Washington news desks come big brown envelopes with a name in one corner: Atomic Energy Commission.

Most of the time the envelopes contain an advance copy of a speech to be delivered somewhere by one of the commission's five members.

Often it is a speech by David L. Lilienthal, chairman of the commission.

A check shows that in the last 10 months Lilienthal and the other commissioners have delivered 34 speeches, 13 by Lilienthal.

This is a lot of speech making by five busy men. But they could make a lot more because they get invitations from all over the country.

They turn down a lot so they can get some work done here. They try to pick out the ones where they can do the most good for their ideas.

What ideas? Getting the American public to think about atomic energy, how it can be used for peace and what its use in war means.

For example, Lilienthal this month made a talk to the Radio Executives' club in New York. Why the radio executives?

BECAUSE HE hoped he could get them to put more information about the atom on the air.

Well, if the commissioners are so anxious to inform the public about the atom, why don't they do more of it themselves?

Because, you'll be told at their office, they're members of a government agency supposed to develop atomic energy.

Congress didn't write anything into law saying the commission should spend money educating the public.

But Lilienthal seems extremely earnest in his belief that the public should be thinking about atomic energy now and be informed about it.

For that reason the commission members talk to radio and newspaper people, educational organizations, community groups and others, asking them to work hard at spreading atomic information.

There seems to be a note of urgency in some of the things Lilienthal says about the need for public information on atomic energy.

For example, he said recently: "What is in the people's minds today about atomic energy is important. But what may be in their minds next year at this time, or two or three years hence, when tensions may have increased, when steady judgment may be essential, depends upon what we do in the meantime."

BESIDES DEVELOPING atomic energy for peaceful uses, Lilienthal also is responsible for seeing that atomic weapons are made and stored up.

Because of national security and the secrecy involved in much atomic work, Lilienthal can't say all he knows nor all he thinks.

But he told the radio executives: "I believe it to be a fact: The only solid hope for preventing the use of atomic energy for destruction is for people everywhere to come to understand the atomic world; and to understand thereby the opportunities that lie before us to put this knowledge to uses beneficial and human."

Told another way, Lilienthal seemed to be saying: If people everywhere know how really destructive the bomb is they really don't want atomic war.

In other speeches he has pointed out the wonderful peacetime uses that can be expected from atomic energy. He has said:

"We must make sure that the American people will have a say-so, and decisive say-so, in the adjustments these discoveries will bring into community life, in our agricultural, educational, industrial and military institutions."

"You must make dead sure that your public servants in all branches of your government, civil and military, legislative and executive, all understand clearly that atomic energy is your business, the people's business."

That seems to be another way of saying:

If the people are informed about what atomic energy can do for them, peacefully, and what it can do in war, they'll make sure to let their congressmen and the government know what they want done.

Most Missing Persons Are Eventually Found

CHICAGO—Police officials estimate that at least 95 per cent of the persons reported missing each year eventually turn up at their homes or are found by some law enforcement agency.

Local records indicate that on a yearly average about twice as many men are reported missing than women.

Chicago's Missing Person Bureau last year handled 4,925 cases and closed the records on 4,691 of them.

REUTHER OUTLINES OPPOSITION TO REDS

NEW YORK, Feb. 20—Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Automobile Workers, says liberals and progressives should discard their "united-front psychology" to fight Communism.

The liberal says Reuther in tomorrow's issue of Collier's magazine, should ally neither with reactionaries to fight Communism nor with Communists to fight for progressive legislation.

The first tactic, he says, involves the danger of "assuming that every one of Communists is a friend of democracy. . . . Hitler, Mussolini, Franco, Peron, Rankin, Bilbo and Gerald L. K. Smith—all could pass that test."

In his article, "how to beat the Communists," Reuther says the idea that liberals can work with Communists is a "delusion (which) still persists in many quarters; Henry Wallace's third-party movement was fathered by it." The union leader calls Wallace's candidacy a "political valet service" for the Communist party.

TRY A WARNER KIDNEY FLUSH

For These Distresses: Clogging of the kidney blood-filtering tubes (of which there are about 15 million, or 9 million in the system) frequently causes backache, aching getting up at night; too scanty, too frequent, or burning bladder elimination; nervousness; loss of appetite; rheumatic-like pains; swelling of ankles; puffiness; sleeplessness; headaches; distasteful; lowered vitality.

MILLIONS SINCE 1875 Have experienced the WONDERFUL EASING and relief from these distresses (when due to clogging of these blood-filtering tubes) which is the use of WARNER'S KIDNEY FLUSH, not in tablets. They help to flush the kidneys, and may make you feel like a NEW PERSON in just 10 to 12 days. POSITIVELY NOTHING BETTER AT ANY PRICE! "They're Economical because you take only two tablets per meal with 48 tablets costing you only 75c at your druggist or we will send you 60 tablets postpaid for $1.00 together with helpful information, 'What you should know about your kidneys.'"

COUNTY'S RURAL PROPERTY SHOWS HUGE VALUATION

Farm property in Columbiana county is now worth more than $16,273,000, and rural homes here and throughout the state are in the best condition in history, according to a report just released by the Title Council of America.

More than 86 per cent of farm dwellings in Ohio and the North Central states are in excellent condition or need only such minor repairs as painting or general maintenance, the report revealed. Only 69.9 per cent were in good repair in 1940. The report was based on Bureau of the Census surveys.

"The rise in farm incomes and property values since 1940 has been accompanied by a great increase in the number of rural homes equipped with such modern conveniences as electric lights, tiled baths and showers and running water," said F. B. Ortman, chairman of the council's residential construction committee.

Electricity, for instance, has gone into hundreds of thousands of rural dwellings in this state and others in the North Central area since 1940.

1940, Ortman noted. More than 65 per cent of such farm homes now have electric lights, in contrast to 39.4 per cent in 1940.

More than 33 per cent of rural dwellings in the North Central region today have running water, and 22 per cent have private baths, according to the report. In 1940, 17.3 per cent had running water and only 11.3 per cent private baths.

VETERANS! You may be able to choose your Army School before you enlist!

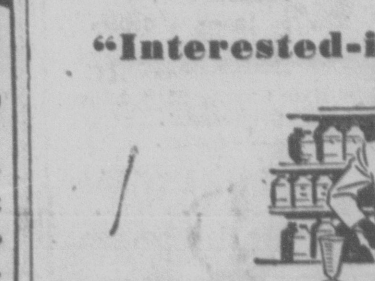

The Army Technical School Plan is one of today's great opportunities for the Veteran—and non-Veteran, too—who wants to choose his education and be paid well while learning.

Any high school graduate can select two fields of interest, and two courses in each field of interest. If there is an opening in one of the courses, you will be accepted for it before enlisting for 3 years in the Army.

Along with a fine education, you get good Army pay, good steady work, and a job that's important to your country. Get the facts at your U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station.

"Interested-in-YOU" Service

THE philosophy of this Prescription Pharmacy may be summed up in our considered belief that you are the most important person in our world. Your wishes, your needs, your prescription, have our undiverted attention from the moment you pass that fragment of mystic prescription over to our side of the counter.

Here you observe in actual daily practice a type of simple, sincere, "interested-in-YOU" service. It's service that is dedicated to your welfare all the way from the selection and careful compounding of pure ingredients to the final price tag.

Yes, admittedly, it is a selfish service which we give. For we know that only by serving you ably and honorably can we hope to build for us an enduring place in this community.

We invite you to test the facilities of this Pharmacy of "Prescription Specialists" in any practical manner. By all means, do ask your Physician about us.

COLUMBIANA HEARS AUXILIARY LEADER

Legion Officer Advocates Military Training In Address

COLUMBIANA, Feb. 20—Universal military training for the United States received strong endorsement in an address by Mrs. Olga Green of Paris, O., state president of the American Legion auxiliary, given at a dinner meeting of Firestone post auxiliary at the Legion home Wednesday evening.

Seventy-five members and guests were present at the coverdish dinner at 6:30.

Mrs. Edwin Johnson, president of the Columbiana auxiliary, presided for the program which followed, introducing Mrs. Green and Mrs. J. L. Pickering of Minerva, Tenth district rehabilitation chairman. Mrs. Green talked about Ohio veterans hospitals, Americanism and national defense, and Mrs. Pickering on her branch of auxiliary work.

The program included two vocal solos by Mary Jo Gross, accompanied by Frances Prizant, and selection of a representative and alternate for the Girls' Buckeye State at Columbus in June. Mary Lou Zellers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Zellers, is the principal and Lois Dishong, daughter of Mrs. Zora Dishong, the alternate.

The president, Mrs. Johnson, and the treasurer, Mrs. Thomas Esenwein, were named delegates to the mid-winter state conference of the auxiliary at Columbus March 5.

Dividends from its magazine campaign have enabled the auxiliary to order two hospital beds and six pairs of crutches, which will be at the service of the community.

Sorosis Meets

A patriotic program featured the February meeting of the Sorosis club at the home of Mrs. Virginia Felger Wednesday evening. Mrs. R. J. Barrow presided for the program, which included patriotic quotations in response to roll call. Mrs. Charles Esenwein gave a biographical sketch of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes; Mrs. Ralph Hum and Mrs. Ralph Lower gave patriotic poems; Mrs. Mae Smith recited Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and Mrs. Fred Detwiler gave sketches of special days in February.

Miss Shirley Bartels presented a group of songs, accompanied by Mrs. Barrow.

Music Makers Elect
At their annual valentine party at the home of their counselor, Mrs. R. J. Barrow, the Music Makers club elected these officers: President, Shirley Wells; vice president, Janet Reinher; secretary, Rachel Esterly; treasurer, Anne Moorehead; program chairman, Sandra Williams.

Shirley Wells had charge of the program, which included piano solos by Anne Moorehead, Janet Reinher and Marilyn Nolan. Rachel Esterly led the games.

The committee in charge of the meeting was Shirley Wells, Janet Reinher, Rachel Esterly and Marilyn Nolan. March 19 is the date of the next meeting.

Teach Students How To Think, Not What, Is Plea

ALLIANCE, Feb. 20 — "Teaching students what to think, rather than how to think," is one of the main evils of our higher educational system, according to a recent article by Dr. A. F. Engelbert, professor of modern languages at Mount Union college, published in the January issue of Education, a monthly magazine devoted to that field.

The title of this article is "Some Thoughts On Thinking." While Dr. Engelbert, in his article, does not attempt to tell how certain subjects should be taught, he does make the statement, "That the successful method must employ teaching techniques which show not only what to think but how to think, and that the ultimate aim of every classroom must be to develop disciplined minds prepared to weigh the evidence and to arrive at sound conclusions."

Hints On Mail For Overseas Are Given

In view of the increasing number of parcels sent by Salem residents to foreign countries, Postmaster A. E. Beardmore today listed suggestions to aid all those who contemplate sending any overseas packages.

"We are concerned especially with the wrappings of these packages," said the postmaster, "as we have received numerous complaints from the custom houses of foreign countries about parcels received in such condition that most of the contents had to be destroyed."

Mailers are asked to be especially careful of the outside wrappings, therefore, as the numerous windings, on and off trains and trucks often result in breakage and loss of contents.

Single cardboard boxes are never acceptable, and should not be used. All parcels must be packed in one of the following outside covers:

Wendell Santee, president of the Christian Endeavor society appointed these committees: social, Beverly Bayless, Charlotte Hopkins and Wesley Bowersock; music, Peggy Chambers, Donald Steer and Curtis Mosher.

The contest for collecting sales stamps runs from Feb. 8 to Feb. 28.

C. E. Banquet
Damascus quarterly meeting Christian Endeavor banquet held at

of the war, and due to the splendid cooperation of the local mailers, very few complaints have been returned to Salem.

The Postmaster states that most mailers use the "Special Handling" stamps, to insure prompt handling along the way and in clearing the customs house.

On parcels sent by first class or airmail to foreign countries, a special form of customs declaration must be used. Some countries do not accept these first class packages, Greece, China, and Brazil in particular.

Various countries have set a weight limit, and the postage scale for each; for example, 15 pounds to Canada, 44 pounds to Czechoslovakia. The general limit to most countries is 22 pounds. Any one desiring to mail, should ascertain the limits before preparing their parcel. Addresses should be made in English language, and in ink.

Airmail or first class parcels to personnel with APO addresses may be sent up to 70 pounds, and without customs declarations.

The State of Ohio, Columbiana County.
Common Pleas Court
Case No. 25607
Vincent C. Judge, County Treasurer of Columbiana County, Ohio, Plaintiff vs.
Robert Henry, et al. Defendant
In pursuance of an Order of Sale on petition to enforce tax lien pursuant to General Code Sec. 2667 in the above entitled action, I will offer for sale at public auction at the door of the Court House in Lisbon, Ohio, in the above named County, on Tuesday the 24th day of February, 1948, at 1:00 O'clock, P. M., the following described real estate, which is to be sold without appraisalment for not less than the total amount of such findings and costs in this action.

"Situating in the Village of Washingtonville, County of Columbiana and State of Ohio and known as and being the following described tract of land: Beginning at a point where the south line of Maple Street is extended west would intersect the west line of Walnut Street and running thence south along said Walnut Street and along the west line of Walnut Street sixty five (65) feet to the place of beginning; thence west one hundred fifty (150) feet to a point; thence south sixty five (65) feet to a point; thence east one hundred fifty (150) feet to a point; thence north sixty five (65) feet to but is a vacant lot located on the west side of Walnut Street sixty five feet south of the south line of Maple Street in the Village of Washingtonville and extends southwardly from said point sixty five feet along said Walnut Street and has a depth of one hundred fifty feet."

Said Premises Located on the west side of Walnut St., in village of Washingtonville, O. The Court further finds that the valid amount of taxes, assessments, penalties and interest appearing due and unpaid on the unredeemed delinquent land tax certificate as set forth in said petition is Thirty-six and 60/100 ($36.60) Dollars and Fifty-four and 95/100 ($34.95) Dollars costs and all accruing costs in this action.

OHIO'S 'BOYSTOWN'

MAKING PROGRESS

WOOSTER, Feb. 20 — Northern Ohio has sprouted a "boys' village" which may become as famous as Nebraska's Boystown.

Founded by Rev. Clarence E.
Kerr in September, 1946, the 127-acre farm site of Boys' Village, Inc., has provided a haven for 17 neglected boys between the ages of 12 and 18. Twelve youngsters still live at the "village" on Route 5 between Wooster and Smithville, and the others have moved successfully into the outside world.

Mayor Thomas A. Burke of Cleveland became the latest "big brother" of the organization yesterday. Rev. Kerr, who presented Mayor Burke's credentials, said founding of the village capped his many years of work with Y. M. C. A.
and boys' clubs in Boston, Pittsburgh and Butler, Pa.

The project was launched, he said, after he had an encouraging talk with A. C. Ramseyer, Smith-ville's "potato king."

"The pennies and dollars began to come in" after the Protestant pastor called a meeting of Smithville business and professional men and area newspaper officials to discuss the program.

The site now has only a farm home, an office building, implement shed and other farm buildings. However, Rev. Kerr said "our eventual goal is a village large enough to care for 200 boys. We shall need 18 homes, a recreation building, shops, a chapel and a schoolhouse."

Boys in the village are required to spend two hours each morning working on the farm, caring for livestock, gardening and household work. Summer and late winter afternoons are spent in ball games, fishing, swimming, indoor contests and other recreation.

The Wayne county Guernsey
Breeders association and Berkshire association have provided cattle, hogs, horses and other animals to stock the rambling farm. Financial gifts have come from labor unions, churches, businessmen, service clubs, exchange and Kiwanis groups in the area.

Peruvian Envoy First Told U. S. of Jap Intrigue

The Memoirs Of Cordell Hull

By CORDELL HULL
Assisted by Andrew Berding
(Copyright, 1948, by North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)
INSTALLMENT 23

LITTLE GOOD as we had had to expect from less to expect from the cabinet headed by Premier General Hideki Tojo after Oct. 17, Tojo, who had been minister of war, continued even as premier to be an active army officer. He was a typical Japanese officer, with a small, straight-laced, one-track mind. He was stubborn and self-willed, rather stupid, hard-working and possessed a quantity of drive.

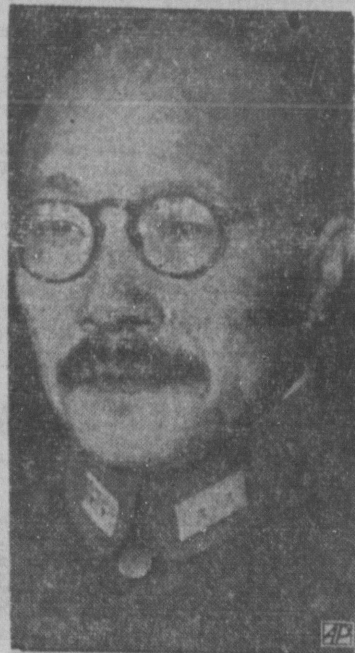

The new foreign minister, Shigenori Togo, was a typical Japanese foreign office official, a good technician in his craft but also rather narrow in his views and unable to take a broad perspective.

At the same time I began to note a sense of urgency in Tojo's and Togo's attitude toward our conversations. Konoe had pressed us to move rapidly in accepting his terms, but one of his purposes had been to continue himself in office, with the help of an agreement with us. Tojo wanted something done quickly, but it was apparent that his purpose was different from Konoe's. If an agreement were not reached, he was prepared, I believed, to take action that would mean war.

This sense of urgency, this almost frantic effort to push us into an agreement that would give Tokyo all it wanted, continued up to Pearl Harbor. We noted it a few days after Tojo came to power when the translation of an intercepted message from Togo to Ambassador Nomura dated Oct. 21 came to my desk. It said, in part: "Our country has said practically all she can say in the way of expressing of opinions and setting forth our stand. We feel that we have now reached a point where no further positive action can be taken by us except to urge the United States to reconsider her views."

We urge, therefore, that, choosing an opportune moment, either you or Wakasugi (counselor of the Japanese embassy) let it be known to the United States by indirection that our country is not in a position to spend much more time discussing this matter."

The impression of urgency on the part of the Tojo government continued to heighten. Foreign Minister Togo on Nov. 3 instructed Saburo Kurosu, former Japanese ambassador to Germany, to come to Washington ostensibly to assist Nomura in his conversations with me. At the request of the Japanese government, we immediately took all the steps we possibly could to facilitate his trip by air across the Pacific.

Tojo

On the same day Ambassador Grew cabled me his opinion that Japan might make a do-or-die attempt, if our conversations failed, actually risking national harmony.

Deadline Set

FOR THE FIRST TIME we now saw a deadline stated in the intercepts. In a message to Nomura on Nov. 5, Togo said: "Because of various circumstances, it is absolutely necessary that all arrangements for the signing of this agreement be completed by the 25th of this month. I realize that this is a difficult order, but under the circumstances it is an unavoidable one. Please understand this thoroughly and tackle the problem of saving the Japanese-U. S. relations from falling into a chaotic condition."

This, to us, could mean only one thing. Japan had already set in motion the wheels of her war machine, and she had decided not to stop short of war with the United States if by Nov. 25 we had not agreed to her demands.

On Nov. 7, I therefore delivered at a regular cabinet meeting a solemn warning of the dangers ahead. At this solemn meeting the Far Eastern situation occupied the minds of all of us. The President customarily opened the cabinet session by discussing a situation himself and then turning to the appropriate cabinet officer for additional comment, or by asking the cabinet member to give his estimate. On this occasion he turned directly to me and asked whether

I had anything in mind.

I then spoke for about 15 minutes and pointed out the dangers in the international situation as a whole. I went fully over the developments in our conversations with the Japanese.

"In my opinion," I concluded, "relations are extremely critical. We should be on the lookout for a military attack by Japan anywhere at any time."

There was a moment of silence. Then the President went around the cabinet, asking each member his opinion. All concurred in my estimate of the dangers.

The cabinet then agreed that the critical situation should be emphasized in speeches by high officials so as better to prepare the country at large for such a development. During the next few days the President, Secretary Knox and Under Secretary Welles delivered emphatic addresses along this line.

Although Nomura continued to offer protestations of Japan's peaceful intentions, the intercepted messages that flowed to my desk told another story. One, dated Nov. 14, from Tokyo to the Japanese representative in Hongkong, described what would happen in China if our conversations failed to produce an agreement. "We will completely destroy British and American power in China," it read. "We will take over all enemy concessions and important enemy rights and interests (customs and minerals, etc.) in China."

Kurosu Deceitful

ON NOV. 15 Ambassador Saburo Kurosu arrived in Washington, and on Nov. 17 Nomura brought him to my office. Kurosu seemed to me the antithesis of Nomura. Neither his appearance nor his attitude commanded confidence or respect. I felt from the start that he was deceitful. Knowing what I did of Japan's intentions from the intercepts, from our regular information and from my analysis of Japan's attitude during our previous conversations, it did not seem possible to me that Kurosu, when he left Japan, did not know the plans of his government and the role he was intended to fill.

The purpose in sending him to Washington was an alternative one. In the first place he was to use all pressure and persuasion possible to induce us to accept Japan's terms. In the second place, if that failed, he was to lull us with talk until the moment Japan got ready to strike.

Nomura, on bringing Kurosu to me, handed me a statement from his government which answered in the affirmative our request for confirmation by the Tojo cabinet of a series of points already made by the Konoe cabinet.

After a short conversation, I accompanied both Ambassadors across the street to the White House for a conference with the President. The situation could not have been more tense. Only the previous day Nomura had received from Foreign Minister Togo a message confirming the deadline of Nov. 25. I had it also through an intercept.

"In your opinion," it said, "we ought to wait and see what turn the war takes and remain patient. However, I am awfully sorry to say that the situation renders this out of the question. I set the deadline for the solution of these negotiations . . . and there will be no change. Please try to understand that. You see how short the time therefore do not allow the United States to sidetrack us and delay the negotiations any further. Press them for a solution on the basis of our proposals, and do your best to bring about an immediate solution."

It was therefore ever more a case of signing on the dotted line or taking the consequences.

Neither in that White House conversation nor in those that followed during the next three days among Nomura, Kurosu and myself did the new envoy advance any new proposal.

Intercepted messages from Tokyo were now proving beyond all doubt that the crisis was at hand. Nomura received instructions concerning the evacuation of Japanese from the United States. He received a new code whereby, through listening to the daily Japanese language short wave news broadcast, he would know from a mention of the word "wind," whether the diplomatic relations were about to be broken with the United States, Russia or Britain. He was told to destroy all code and secret papers on hearing this message.

Ultimatum

THEN ON NOV. 20—Thanksgiving day—Nomura and Kurosu handed me a new set of proposals from their government which on their faces were extreme. The intercepted message had apprised us of the fact that this was Japan's final proposition. It was an ultimatum.

Although Japan's proposal was of so preposterous a character that no responsible American official could ever have dreamed of accepting it, I felt I should not be too sharp in my reactions, so as to avoid giving the Japanese any pretext to walk out of the conversations.

On Nov. 21 Ambassador Kurosu came alone to see me. I asked Kurosu whether he or Nomura had anything more to offer on the whole subject of a peaceful settlement. He replied that he did not.

After this visit from Kurosu and his statement that he had nothing more to offer on the subject of a peaceful settlement, I redoubled, in conversations with individuals in authority in Washington, among them Admiral Stark, my warnings that Japan might attack at any time.

Diplomatically, the situation was virtually hopeless. We on our part, however, wanted to exhaust all means to find a peaceful solution and to avert or delay war. Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of the Navy Knox, the chief of staff, General Marshall, and the chief of naval operations, Admiral Stark, with whom I was in constant contact, pleaded for more time in which to prepare American resistance. On the other hand, Japan was calling for a showdown. We stood firmly for our principles; the Japanese were unyielding and intimidating in their demands.

As we sought to prepare our counter-proposals on Nov. 21 and 22, we drafted a possible modus vivendi, or temporary agreement, to which would be attached the outline of a permanent agreement.

We worked on an outline of a ten-point peace settlement to accompany the modus vivendi. In general, my associates and I had reached a stage of clutching at straws to save the situation.

Secretary Morgenthau sent me a further draft of a proposed settlement, written in his department. Although this was a further example of the Secretary of the Treasury's persistent inclination to try to function as a second secretary of state, some of its points were good and were incorporated in our final draft.

Defer Deadline

AN INTERCEPTED message from Tokyo to Nomura and Kurosu on Nov. 22 extended the deadline from Nov. 25 to 29. After that, war. "Stick to our fixed policy and do your very best," it said. "Spare no effort and try to bring about the solution we desire. There are reasons beyond your ability to guess why we wanted to settle Japanese-American relations by the 25th, but if within the next three or four days you can finish your conversations with the Americans; if the signing can be completed by the 29th, let me write it out for you—twentieth-ninth; if the pertinent notes can be exchanged; if we can get an understanding with Great Britain and the Netherlands; and in short if everything can be finished, we have decided to wait until that date. This time we mean it, that the deadline absolutely cannot be changed. After that things are automatically going to happen."

It was in the shadow of that phrase—"after that things are automatically going to happen"—that we labored desperately during the next two weeks, striving to the last for peace or at least more time.

A few hours after my conversation with the British, Chinese, Australian and Dutch envoys (on Nov. 22), Nomura and Kurosu called at my apartment.

It was almost unreal to see these representatives come to my home smiling, courteous, and outwardly friendly. It was a strain to talk to them in the same tone and on the same level, knowing what I did of Japan's nefarious plans from the intercepted messages, and knowing that Nomura and Kurosu had the same information.

There they sat, bowing agreeably, Nomura sometimes giggling. Kurosu often showing his teeth in a grin, while through their minds must have raced again and again the thought that if we did not say "Yes" to Japan's demands, their government in a matter of a few days would launch new aggressions that sooner or later would inevitably bring war with the United States.

On Nov. 24, an intercepted message from Tokyo to Nomura stated that the deadline of Nov. 29 set in a previous message was in Tokyo time. The sword of Damocles which hung over our heads was therefore attached to a clockwork set to the hour.

Bits of This and That From Ohio Scene

New Theory Advanced For Veeck's Shirts; Ohio State Monthly Blasts At P. Brown

By FRITZ HOWELL
Ohio AP Sports Editor

COLUMBUS, Feb. 20.—Did you ever wonder why Bill Veeck, dynamic prey of the Cleveland Indians, invariably wears a short-sleeved sports shirt and lightweight jacket at all times, in any and all kinds of weather?

Well, we've wondered too, so it was with interest that we read the following bit by Jim Schlemmer of the Akron Beacon Journal:

"Veeck says it is because of a tragic accident the one and last time he attempted to dress up. It was while he was a student at Kenyon college. The occasion was the June commencement dance.

"Veeck made a successful play for the football captain's girl friend. As befitting the companion of such a campus hero, she was a queen. Bill decided that maybe, for this one occasion, and in view of his triumph over the football captain, it would be well to change to more proper attire.

"He went to his room beneath the rafters on the top floor of Leonard hall. He was intent upon getting into freshly-pressed trousers a la the West Pointers, so there would be a crease left after he was in them.

"He leaned against the wall near an open window, 60 feet above the ground. His other hand was busy with the trousers. A friend passed on the campus below and called to him. Veeck forgot himself and waved with his 'holding' hand.

"He turned over twice and landed feet first on the ground. Every bone in both feet and ankles was fractured. He spent most of the summer in a hospital at Mount Vernon.

"He has made no effort to dress up since. At least, that's his story." (Schlemmer has his own idea as to the sports shirt, etc., angle. He believes Veeck is so busy, doing to many different things, that he just doesn't have time to put on a tie.)

The following was picked up from the February issue of the Ohio State university monthly, from the middle of a story on the Buckeye gridiron outlook:

"The loss of two outstanding half-backs, Bob Brugge and Dean Sensenbaur, each with a full year's eligibility remaining, to the Cleveland professionals, naturally came as a blow.

"Strategy of the professional raider had been first to announce that he was after four Buckeye backfield stars and then snaffle 'only two'.

"This was shrewd, in keeping with character. But it didn't alter the fact that either Brugge or Sensenbaur might have made Ohio State's '48 season.

"Coach Feiler and his staff wished the best possible success to both Brugge and Sensenbaur, each of whom is married, once the boys' decision to turn professional was announced. Each lost several years from academic studies through service in the armed forces and each feels that the time to cash in on publicity as great performers in the Scarlet and Gray is now or never.

The advice of many friends on campus was to return, at all cost, to complete work for a degree.

"While the instances were very rare of other professional interests raiding other campuses and luring away undergraduates with cash, the Cleveland pro chieftain seemed bent on weakening Ohio State's chances."

REPORT APPROACH OF PITT WOLVES

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 20.—The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph said that athletic department heads at the University of Pittsburgh will be blasted for recent failures of Panther football teams in a report of a six-man investigating committee.

The newspaper said yesterday the committee of students and alumni blamed head Coach Mike Milligan and Athletic Director Jim Hagan for the school's worst football season in history last fall.

The official report is to be submitted to Chancellor Rufus H. Fitzgerald of Pitt soon.

However, only one member of the committee would comment on the Sun-Telegraph story. Walter Thompson, a Pitt Senior, said—

"This (newspaper account) is pure speculation. Nobody but members of the committee have seen the report thus far."

The Sun-Telegraph story said Milligan was criticized for three alleged failings. They were listed as: "Inability to handle discipline and get the most out of young football players, failure to cultivate and maintain cordial relations with High school coaches, and lack of an offensive on the gridiron."

Pitt won but one of its 10 games last season—from Ohio State.

SALEM BOOSTERS MAP GOOD SPORTS DRIVE IN COUNTY

President Baillie Tells of Hope To Develop "Good Era" Feeling

A county-wide sportsmanship drive, with one of the seven major schools in the area receiving an annual trophy or banner for being "the best sports" in a given school year, was suggested by President George "Pie" Baillie when the Salem Boosters club held its first winter meeting Thursday night in the Memorial building.

Commenting on widespread poor sportsmanship, Baillie said "it's time something was done to improve the situation." His "good sports" plan would entail judging each community's players, coaches and fans by officials working each football and basketball game.

The officials would grade each city and mail the mark to a central committee, which would do the final judging.

The Boosters went on record last night as in favor of the idea and officers are contacting other county boosters clubs in an effort to enlist their aid.

Fifty members of the club were present and heard Coach Bob Miller say "we should beat Alliance by playing our normal game." He also told the group that his team is working smoothly at present and is having no internal dissension.

He showed pictures of the Salem games with Youngstown Rayen and East Liverpool.

The club took steps to procure either Chick Davies of Duquesne or "Tippy" Day of Ohio State as its banquet speaker, reversing a previous decision to get Adolph Rupp, coach of the Kentucky Wildcats.

It was learned that the club treasury shows a balance of $425.47, the lowest amount since the Army-Navy benefit football game in the fall of 1946.

BENNETT FIGURED IN INDIANA COACH

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Feb. 20.—Indiana university's street corner quarterback gave Charles (Chick) Bennett an edge today in speculation on the successor to Alvin N. Paul Williams, 5-10, and Charlie Nelson, 5-11, make up the balance of the starting group at guard and forward, respectively. Thompson, incidentally, shifts from forward to center throughout the offensive maneuvers.

All are seniors with the exception of Washington, who is a Sophomore.

On the second string with Polovina are Querie Lelli, 5-6; Bob Turrentine, 6-2; Ron Frakey, 5-11 and Nick Tsangos, 5-9.

The Big Red reserve squad, which tackle Salem's much-improved Sophomore club, comes here with a 17-3 record and is touted as one of the best reserve squads in the district. That preliminary will begin at 7:30 p. m.

Coach Bob Miller will stick to his most recent starting combination (Bob Payer, Virg Kelly, Tommy Miller, Wilford Faulkner and Pete Cain) with the usual alterations including Carl Ciccozzi and Eddie Bozich.

The varsity tilt will get under way at about 8:45.

Bennett returned to Indiana in the summer of 1944 to work on a master's degree while helping with wartime summer football practice that year. He worked with the backs and impressed the Hoosier grid staff as knowing his business.

Unofficially the university was reported taking a telephone and telegraph poll of the trustees. They were expected to approve McMillin's release immediately. Before seeking a new coach they must decide whether to have a separate athletic director or combine the office with that of football coach as was done for McMillin.

Millermen Face Danger Mark In Outfit With 10 Wins, 12 Losses On Books

Salem's basketball opposition for the final home game of the season—with the Steubenville Big Red—comes armed with a paradoxically disarming record.

After the Quakers have disposed of the Sebring question—one way or the other—at the High school gym tonight, Bob Miller and his team will be faced with a tricky, unpredictable foe in the Big Red.

The visitors for Saturday have won 10 games and lost 12 and the details of that record are even more confusing than the simple win-loss analysis shows.

For instance, Steubenville played East Liverpool—the only mutual foe with Salem—twice. And the first time they showed themselves to be impressively superior to the Pottery. But the second time the two teams met—and here's the irony—East Liverpool trampled the Big Red 47-27.

There's a somewhat similar comparison of the Big Red in its home town mate, Central Catholic High. The first game ended in a wild 37-35 victory for the Big Red, but the second meeting on Tuesday of this week found the Big Red thumping the Central aggregation 55-41.

To carry the same theme a little further along, Welton edged the Big Red 48-46 in an overtime battle the first time the two met and then soundly laced Steubenville 66-45 last week.

The comparison of the Big Red's ups and downs doesn't end there either. Martins Ferry defeated Steubenville 45-39 in an early game and then a week ago lost 48-46 in a return match.

In those lines of comparison one can easily see the latent, though often active, potentialities of the Big Red outfit. It's no mean opponent.

Besides the tendency to be up and then away down, the Big Red boasts a galaxy of star performers who are just about as hot and cold individually as the team is collectively.

Pete Polovina, now a second stringer, is the team's top scorer. He has totaled 220 points in some 13 of the Big Red games, but is now considered among the substitute ranks. He will, however, get his five foot eleven inch frame into action.

The starting lineup Salem will face includes three men who go six two. Top scorer in this group is Lawrence Thompson, a forward, who has 172 points for the season. Also starting will be 6-2 Robert Wheeler and Marvin Washington, the latter at a guard spot.

Paul Williams, 5-10, and Charlie Nelson, 5-11, make up the balance of the starting group at guard and forward, respectively. Thompson, incidentally, shifts from forward to center throughout the offensive maneuvers.

All are seniors with the exception of Washington, who is a Sophomore.

On the second string with Polovina are Querie Lelli, 5-6; Bob Turrentine, 6-2; Ron Frakey, 5-11 and Nick Tsangos, 5-9.

COLD STORAGE APP

AS LONG AS I LIVE

By Ione Sandberg Shriber
DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

It was Luke. The gardner. He'd started into town, got a flat tire. He'd walked back for a jack. It was in the garage and he'd get it but the walk had been long and dusty and if he could please have a glass of water?

"How about lemonade?" Ann asked. "I just made some for the picnic."

Lemonade would be fine. Ann drank some with him, standing against the big square kitchen table. Then she rinsed out the tumblers, put on her dark glasses, picked up the big gayly striped Mexican basket and the gallon thermos.

"You going down the steps with all that stuff?" Luke asked but she said no, she was going over the bridge, it was so much quicker.

"Well, I'll carry it for you," Luke said. "I won't take a minute and that basket looks heavy." He picked up the basket and the thermos, went out the door, and through the back yard toward the ravine.

Ann stopped only long enough to pull the shades at the window over the sink because the sun hit the kitchen windows in the afternoon and made the room hot. Then she followed Luke down the path.

She wasn't more than 15 steps from the bridge when Luke stepped on it. She couldn't have been. In fact, he turned and saw her and she raised a hand in salute and that was when it happened.

Luke took two more steps and, without a sound, the ropes gave way.

She knew she would never forget his scream as Luke realized what was happening; she would never forget the plunging body, the picnic baskets hurtling through the air, the dull smack of the bridge as it struck the rock wall on the other side of the ravine.

The others heard Luke's scream and came running. They stood on the far side of the ravine and stared, with horrified eyes, at the sprawled body inert on the floor of the ravine, at Ann, standing, stupefied, not three feet from the edge. She'd moved forward, of course, without knowing she had done so.

"Get back!" Rush shouted harshly. "Ann, for Pete's sake, get back!" and then he said to someone else, "She's going to faint! Cripes, Tommy, get out of my way!"

When she opened her eyes she was in her own room, on her own bed, and Rush was on his knees beside her.

Rush spoke, and there was a little frantic note in his voice. Rush said, "Oh, Ann, my dearest, thank God it wasn't you!"

Luke was dead.

His neck, as well as most of the bones in his body, was broken. Rush called the doctor who in turn notified both the coroner and the sheriff. Sheriff Sam Blanding. The authorities, Rush said, his lips white, had to be notified in case of sudden death.

They went out into the garden to look at the bridge, to check the ropes, to see if they could figure out what had caused the accident.

Sam Blanding shook his head and said, "It ain't safe t'have such contraptions around, I guess." There was more than a trace of disapproval on his face and in his voice as he leaned over to inspect the ropes.

"Know when you had it looked at last, Mr. Bancroft?"

Rush came in, finally, to ask her if she remembered when the bridge had been checked.

Ann looked blank. She didn't know, couldn't be sure. Luke had taken care of such things and now Luke—she rather thought last fall. The inquest took place two days later and, while everyone from Top-hill had to attend, the result was a forgone conclusion.

The verdict was accidental death, followed by a pointed suggestion from the coroner that, should the little bridge be replaced, it be checked regularly.

Rush said emphatically, that they had no intention whatsoever of replacing the bridge.

Recalling all this, Ann drew a deep breath.

Would that verdict of accidental death remain unchanged if she were to show Mr. Stark's letter to the coroner? What had been done to the bridge to make it collapse? Were there ways to shred a rope almost through so that the slightest strain would make it give way, and yet conceal that shredding so that to the naked eye it would appear that the fault lay in the weakness of the rope itself? the rope and the weather?

Everyone took it for granted that the bridge would have collapsed no matter who stepped upon it. Well, of course. She had herself. And, in a way, that was still true.

It was simply that she knew now, and the knowledge turned her cold inside, that it had been a trap. A death trap. She had been supposed to step upon that bridge. She, Ann Bancroft, not Luke.

U. N. Action In Korea 'Last Hope'

(By Associated Press)
LAKE SUCCESS, Feb. 20 — The United Nations Little Assembly was warned today "Korea may blow up" if the U. N. fails to unite the north and south.

The warning was made by K. P. S. Menon of India, chairman of the U. N. Korean mission. Menon flew from Seoul to ask the Little Assembly for instructions after Russia refused to admit the commission to Soviet-occupied Northern Korea. Menon quoted Korean leaders as saying "the United Nations is our last hope."

"If this last hope, too, is shattered," Menon said, "Korea may blow up; and it may be the beginning of a vaster cataclysm in Asia and the world."

Russia and the five other Slav countries were not present as the Little Assembly heard the report of the commission's failure. They are boycotting this new U. N. agency.
